

If you're worried about the present generation of students, come and hear the "New Hope" on December 2, at 8:00 in the UCC library. Neil Steinhauer, a shotputter who graduated from the U of O, will also be speaking.

The "New Hope" is a singing group of college students. They have made several records and are interested in telling people the most wonderful news of all. They will be telling this news during their appearance at UCC.

STUDENT POLL

By Rich Newton

Since one of the purposes of this newspaper is "to reflect the atmosphere prevalent at UCC," Splinters ran a student opinion poll last week. In this poll 106 students were asked a series of eight questions. The results and accompanying commentary are as follows:

What is your single greatest complaint about UCC?
Not enough activities	17.4%
Not enough pertinent classes available	13.1%
General education as poorer than expected	6.6%
Student apathy	17.4%
Teacher apathy	3.4%
Other	6.6%
None	35.6%

I think that one of the important things to note here is the number of students with no complaints. This completely baffles me, after listening to almost a solid term of complaints by students. It seems that when they have to specify those complaints, they're tongue-tied. Also the high percentages in "not enough activities" and "student apathy" seem to show that these two go hand in hand. That is, the high amount of student apathy makes the student council reluctant to schedule many activities, resulting in more apathy, and so on.

What is the single best thing you like about UCC?
Plenty of activities	0.0%
General education of a high level	23.3%
Student participation	1.6%
Teacher involvement	20.1%
Other	23.2%
None	20.1%

There are four areas I would like to discuss on the results of this question. First it is apparent that many students feel that they are getting a good education here, as shown by the 23.3% under General education of a high level. Secondly, the students must feel that the teachers are interested in the campus, as well as their subjects, also they don't seem to share that opinion with the participation of the students. Last of all, the 23% who answered "other", responded with replies nice campus, small classes, and one rather droll reply of "other".

What activities have you participated in during the last term?
Dances	16.6%
Movies	20.0%
Lectures and/or recitals	26.6%
Clubs	18.3%
Student Gov't.	11.6%
Sports	8.3%
Other	6.6%
None	36.6%

Note the percentage of students that don't participate in any activities at all. And people wonder why there are a shortage of activities. I'll give you three guesses.

Caroling Date Set

Caroling is an integral part of Christmas and on Dec. 17, everyone will have a chance to do it.

Cary Yurk is planning the event which will include visits to rest homes, the V.A. hospital and possibly the other two hospitals in town. Also, the flat-bed truck carrying those interested will drive through the streets of town so everyone can listen to Christmas songs.

All persons interested in going caroling should meet on the Courthouse lawn at 6:00 on Dec. 17th.

Tahlkie Pictures

What's that? You didn't find your picture in the annual last year? Well, now's your chance!

Whether you're a graduating student in a nursing program, vo-tech, two year transfer program student, or just returning to UCC this year, your picture will be taken registration day of winter term, Dec. 11. In addition to your picture being in the annual, you will have the opportunity to place a personal order if you desire.

So as Dec. 11 rolls around, the Talkie staff would like you to be prepared.

Student Council Elects New Officers

Due to the fact that there were not enough petitioners to fill the offices in the regular election, a special election was set up to fill these vacancies as provided in the ASUCC Constitution. On Nov. 10, Jim Babe was elected by the Student Council to the vacant office of Vo-tech Representative. His only opponent in the election was Joe Reeder.

During the regular meeting of Nov. 10, it was found that a petition submitted by Kathy Grimes for Vo-tech Representative was overlooked the week before. Kathy decided to withdraw her petition and file one for Corresponding Secretary instead. At the same meeting Peggy Hopkins submitted a petition for Corresponding Secretary and Kathy Mincher submitted one for Recording Secretary. The Student Council elected Peggy Hopkins Corresponding Secretary, and Kathy Mincher Recording Secretary.

SAWDUST

There is a war going on over in Vietnam still - in case you didn't know. Lately it has been played down so much that it has almost vanished from the minds of most Americans. Yet there is a small minority of 1,600 Americans who can't forget that this war is indeed real. Those are the service men that Hanoi are holding prisoners in North Vietnam.

Now I would like to ask you, do you care? Do you REALLY care? I don't care if you are for the war or against it, whether you think we should blow up North Vietnam or get the heck out of there, no matter what you think you must, or should, be concerned over the fate of these men. If you really care, write. It does help. Hanoi does listen. Letters have started to flow into Hanoi from the U.S. and they do listen, as evidenced by the increased amount of letters received by the P.O.W.'s families over here.

Write to Hanoi, demand that a list of prisoners be released, ask for more humane treatment, request free delivery and reception of letters.

It will cost you only a few cents, but your letter along with the hundreds being sent to Hanoi now, could save the lives of 1,600 men. So write, for humanities sake.

Rich

I'd like to find the person who started the rotten custom of writing editorials for each and every issue of the newspaper. It probably was someone who was a good talker -- the exact opposite of me.

Writing editorials gets me down sometimes. It's hard work and I'm rather lazy. However, the work wouldn't be so hard if there were something to gripe about -- something that really mattered to more than a few people.

It seems that editorials are always written about apathy, the 'rotten' deal that students are getting, or the way teachers aren't teaching. There ought to be some other topics besides these. Perhaps someone could give me some ideas by writing an article for the Platform. It wouldn't be any more difficult for anyone of you students to do it than it is for me to write an editorial. A newspaper is intended for everyone so the work should be spread out. Perhaps it is hard work for you to read the paper. If it is, you are doing your share. For the rest of you though, your share would be making constructive criticism, writing articles for Platform so we would know how you think, and doing something so we would have something to either write or gripe about. However, you haven't been doing any of those things so the Platform is filled by staff writers and the editors fill their large box on one side. You students then take over, glance through the paper and wonder why nothing you think is in it.

I guess this turned out to be an editorial after all. It didn't start out to be, but since it is, I'll finish it with two sentences. Get off your lazy duffs and do some work. The paper will die without help.

Beth

Much is said critically of teachers, but little is said in the proper direction. Students, if you have complaints, air them with the heads of the various departments. These men and women are constantly striving to better their respective departments and whether your complaint is one of a faulty choice of material or only of the teacher himself, it would be appreciated. Obviously, if a department head hears a constant flow of criticism the situation will be reviewed.

This writer has heard complaints of only one teacher at UCC this year, but even one poor teacher is a poor reflection on both the school and those teachers who are quietly and efficiently doing their jobs.

Often, if a need arises for a teacher change, it would seem that the students themselves are in the best position to effect this change by reporting inadequacies.

Furthermore, the students would be doing themselves the justice of guaranteeing a quality education. A poor situation can be remedied if the people involved care enough. It's your education!

Club Notes

By Rich Newton

As I had promised you last issue I am back in person this time (if there is such a thing.) This being the last issue of the term I thought that it would be appropriate to review the activities of the several clubs in the term past.

One of the clubs that showed real promise at the beginning of this term was the Field and Stream Club. It started the year out with its Big Buck Contest in which more than one hundred people participated. But after this great start, it fell over the traditional UCC stumbling block, apathy.

Another club, that is at this point still unrecognized by the student council, that shows real promise is the Drama Club. A few weeks ago the club made a trip to SOC to view a great performance of Tennessee William's Glass Menagerie. The club is also to serve as a dramatic example for the literature classes next term. Plans are also in the making for a full production play to be performed during spring term. As I said before, if this club can withstand the initial onslaughts of apathy, it could prove to be one of the best clubs on campus.

Campus Challenge, although suffering from lack of large numbers, is fulfilling it's mission as a club as stated in it's constitution. I would term this club as being successful. As it is better to have a small membership and having them all do something, than it is to have a large one, and do nothing.

Phi Beta Chi is in the midst of compiling it's traditional student directory. This directory will have the name, address and phone number of each student at UCC. It will be on sale in the bookstore next term.

As for the other clubs that are supposed to exist on campus, they are as good as dead.

If you don't see a club that appeals to you from the ones listed above, there is plenty of opportunity to form your own. All you need is a constitution and fifteen interested people.

To Mike Wetherell;

At no time have I agreed to spearhead this operation (OSPRIG). I did say I would help. You showed great interest at the meeting in Eugene in saying you would get the ball rolling as soon as possible. You did nothing but dilly-dally around. And when it got to the point where proceeding would make you look bad because you didn't do as you said and begin immediately, you shrugged the responsibility off onto someone else. In this way if it failed you wouldn't be affected by criticism. This is extremely aggravating and for this reason and this reason only, I refuse to even help. I suggest you act like you know what you're doing for a change and start treating people as more than peons. How you were elected President is beyond me. Whether this aggravates you or not means nothing to me, as my feelings mean nothing to you.

This space is designated for you the student, to express your views freely and openly. This paper welcomes short statements of opinion on issues of general interest to the people of this campus. It is our hope that this will go beyond the standard "Letters to the Editor" type of column.

Any sensible, serious article of intelligent, timely discussion will be printed subject to limitations of space. All articles must be signed, and all articles will be printed with the writers name. Anything you have to say, just turn it into room L-1 anytime.

be likely that he would go unnoticed unless he did something extremely radical, like unplugging the juke-box in the student lounge."

I cannot blame fully the editors of the paper, for I have noticed attempts on their part to concern the student body with current issues. I also commend the few students who have written editorial comments and who have contributed their poems to the paper. This campus is plagued with apathy and something must be done to remedy the situation. Let's turn the Splinters into a college paper that has signs of life, of fever, of commitment.

What is your single greatest complaint against the teachers?
Not available outside of classroom time 1.8%
Does not cover subject adequately 8.5%
Not enough time spent in discussion 11.7%
Does not seem to be genuinely interested in students . . . 7.0%
Grading procedure 11.7%
Too much homework 10.2%
Other 8.5%
None 40.6%

I think the important thing to look at here is the number of student who had no complaints against the teachers. Of those that did levy complaints, most of them were specific rather than general criticisms. That is, they would name a teacher or class after their complaint.

What do you think that the single best thing about the teachers is?
Available outside of class 29.3%
Plenty of time spent on discussion 22.4%
Grading procedure 5.2%
Good student teacher relations 36.2%
Other 4.4%
None 4.4%

Obviously the students are pleased with the teachers here. No further commentary is necessary.

What is your single greatest complaint against the students?
Apathetic 20.6%
Not friendly 12.1%
Not genuinely interested in getting an education 20.6%
None 36.7%

Again notice the high number of no complaint students. The high numbers in "apathetic" and "not genuinely interested in getting an education" seem to go together to me, since they are both terms of apathy.

What do you feel that the single best thing about the students is?
Involved 1.6%
Friendly 62.7%
Interested in getting an education 11.8%
Other 3.2%
None 20.7%

Need I say anything?
Do you think the administration at UCC is?
Holding the students back 15.0%
Doing alright 45.0%
Giving the students too much power 1.7%
No opinion 38.3%
Note the high No opinion percentage. One person made a comment on the survey that I feel is valid and should be presented. He/she said "The administration never comes in contact with students. Half of the kids don't know who is the President. The administration should come in contact with the school, the students, and the problems both have."

Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forbearing labor, feasting, or any other way, as a festival, shall be fined five shillings.

Latest Addition From Japan

by Bev Dage

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of four articles designed to introduce the foreign students of UCC to the rest of the student body.)

I captured my latest victim for an interview, Talcshi Kori (Ken), of Japan, in the lounge where he was busily enjoying his lunch. Somehow, between the ear-blasting noise of the students, the comparably loud juke-box and the constant pain from my headache, I managed to understand a little of what Ken and I were saying to each other. (I think this was only because I am an able lip reader.)

This is Ken's first year at U.C.C. and he hasn't quite decided whether he will come back again. Don't get shook now, it's not because he doesn't like our magnificent campus. As a matter of fact, he seems to really enjoy the place. He likes the smallness of the college and the informal atmosphere that is a custom here. Large Universities aren't for him and that is exactly why he chose Umpqua for his first year.

The USA has been his home for approximately three months and he wants to stay over here for at least one year and four years if possible. He himself is paying for his education instead of being sponsored by his government. Education is his major and his present goal is to attend San Francisco State College after Umpqua.

American slang always seems to be a stumbling block for most foreign students, but not for Ken. He understands it perfectly, I don't know what his magic formula is, but perhaps he should teach it to the other foreign students on campus.

I learned two very important things from this interview: The first is never try and conduct an interview in the lounge during lunch break. The second and probably more important of the two is that Talcshi Kori is one nice guy.

Across Rivers

by Mike Thibault

UCC has its school year set up in a unique way which enables students an extra week's Christmas vacation. For many, it's a time for a weeks worth of extra parties, shopping, visiting, and yes, even fishing. December is the first fine month for the pursuit of the wily steelhead.

All this brings us to an open invitation from this writer to those students with a yen for casting roe into a stream in the freezing rain; those with a yen for wet feet; and yes, those with even a yen for one of nature's rare delicacies, baked steelhead.

December 14th through 18th, I intend to take advantage of my extra week by visiting different steelhead waters each day. A temporary schedule will appear near the end of this column.

Ideally speaking, both in expense and success ratio, one does better in a group as opposed to alone. Anyone interested in these trips can contact me either through this paper or my home phone, 672-6366. What I have in mind would be up to 4 others for my VW and myself. This would cut gas to a fraction. One more rather different wrinkle could be a profit sharing plan which would guarantee everyone that baked steelhead. If one fish were caught and five went then the fish would return in five pieces for all and so on. Equal fish for all would seem to make the outing more a sporting trip than the business of one keeping all. If one of the days were really successful, it would be to my thinking that out co-editors, Beth and Rich, would be interested in a picture of this success for publication about Christmas activities of students.

Each day those who would like to go could leave around eight and return near dark. Those interested in going once or twice, fine, and those interested in cold hands and feet the full five days are welcomed.

Five trips to different locations could be invaluable in many ways. We could see a different section of water daily which would do one's appreciation of Oregon's splendor immeasurable value. Likewise, exercise and fresh air was never known to be a detriment to health.

A vacation awaits those interested in this endeavor. Anyone with the urge, let me know. Teachers are welcomed and appreciated. If more than five inquire, I'm sure there's a way of acquiring more vehicles somewhere.

A possible itinerary might be:
Monday, December 14 -- Coquille River-South Fork
Tuesday, December 15 -- Siletz River*
Wednesday, December 16 -- Sixes and Elk Rivers
Thursday, December 17 -- Alsea River*
Friday, December 18 -- Umpqua River-North Fork
*Later return due to farther driving distance.

Next term the "lit" students of this school will be the recipients of the hard work of the newly formed drama club. It seems that those studying plays and activities of the past are likely to see these affairs redone in the classroom for their better understanding.

In this way UCC's drama club, under many irregular disadvantages will be doing their part for us. It is a fine idea by this organization considering that this year they will be operating without a stage or an auditorium. (One is presently under construction for next year.) Adversity often breeds ambitious and constructive solutions.

Timbermen Look South In December

Umpqua College's roundballers will be on the road most of the time in pre-season play. In the month of Dec. the Timbermen have eight games of which seven are away, including the longest road trip in the College's history.
